It's 'Pandemonious jollification!'

CJ Patel, owner of KC Mart #7 in Simpsonville, shares with media the thrill of selling South Carolina's first jackpot-winning Mega Millions® ticket.

ASK FOR THE SALE

Sell a jackpot winning Mega Millions® ticket and your store earns a $50,000 commission when the prize is claimed. Be sure to ask customers to give Mega Millions® a try today!

A call from the South Carolina Education Lottery at 5 in the morning gave CJ Patel goosebumps. The owner of KC Mart #7 in Simpsonville absorbed the news that his convenience store sold the sole winning ticket for a $1.5 billion Mega Millions® jackpot. That was the start of an exciting, but long and eventful day for Patel.

KC Mart #7, a community store that sits in a crossroads and caters mostly to local passersby, made history on October 23 by selling a ticket for the biggest, single-winning lottery payout in U.S. history. It was South Carolina's first Mega Millions® jackpot win. Odds of selling that ticket: about 1 in 303 million.

By 11 a.m. the Lottery formally announced the store's location. And Patel watched out his window as national and local news crews began arriving. CNN, ABC's Good Morning America, CBS News, NBC's Nightly News and local news trucks filled his parking lot and overflowed, wrapping down the street in both directions.

"Have you seen my parking lot?" he asked lottery officials there to congratulate him and his staff. "There's nowhere to park."

Patel's regular lunchtime customers parked wherever they could squeeze in and weaved past camera crews and curious onlookers anxious to see where the winning ticket was sold in South Carolina.

At 1 p.m., Patel and the Lottery's Chief Operating Officer Tony Cooper addressed the crowd gathered, eager to hear details about the staggering $1.537 billion prize.

"I can't even count that number," joked Patel.

Cooper said he needed a moment to process it too. When asked to express how he felt upon hearing the news the winning ticket was sold at a South Carolina store, he said he needed to make up new words to describe the elation: "Pandemonious jollification," he said.

Weeks later, customers are still flocking to the store to try their luck with a lottery ticket. Many are curious about who the lucky winner is. As of this newsletter's printing, the winner has not come forward.

Once the winner has been paid, Patel will receive a $50,000 selling bonus for selling the claimed ticket.

Patel told the Greenville News he was born in India and came to the United States in 1996. He has owned convenience stores around Simpsonville for about 20 years. Before marrying and starting a family, he said he slept in the back of his first store in Simpsonville.

"This is the land of opportunity," Patel said.

SPOTLIGHT

Palm Pantry #1

By Krystal Patrick, Midlands MSR

Fast and efficient customer service comes naturally to owner Vipul Patel and the employees at Palm Pantry #1, and that's why they are the #1 lottery retailer in Bamberg County.

In the midst of being a gas station and convenience store, Palm Pantry #1 maintains a strong, outstanding lottery business. While keeping up with the high customer traffic volume, Vipul motivates his employees to strive for excellence in selling lottery tickets.

"Our excellent customer service and well stocked dispensers have paid off for our players," Vipul said. "Updated lottery equipment has been very helpful as well," he shared.

Palm Pantry #1 worked hard to become the #1 Lottery Retailer in Bamberg County. How did they do it? Staff motivation and excellent customer service.

Palm Pantry #1 has produced several top prize winners over the years with the most recent being a $125,000 Cash Payout win in May of 2018. Staff looks forward to celebrating many more such wins with their lottery players.
